

Frank P. Maier-Rigaud is an economist in the Policy Directorate of DG Competition. His main area of work is in antitrust case support and scrutiny but he has also been involved in some key policy projects such as private enforcement, antitrust remedies and the development of the sector inquiry tool. Besides his work at the European Commission, he remains affiliated with the University of Bonn and the Max Planck Institute in Bonn, Germany where he applies experimental and game theoretic tools to antitrust issues.

He has represented the Commission in numerous conferences and international seminars and has written and lectured on competition policy, industrial organization, game theory and public economics.

In the past he held academic positions at Indiana University Bloomington and the University of California, Berkeley. Among others he is a member of the American Economic Association and the Verein für Socialpolitik. He has received various research grants and fellowships.

Frank Maier-Rigaud has a PhD in Economics from the University of Bonn and a Master degree in Economics and a Master degree in Political Science from Indiana University Bloomington. He holds a BA in Economics and Business Administration from the University of Freiburg.