LL.M. and CAS in International Business Law

SPECIALISATIONS

Our LL.M and CAS programs in International Business Law are interdisciplinary, comparative, and practice-oriented programmes designed to equip graduate students and early-career professionals with the knowledge and skills to navigate the legal challenges of today's global business environment.

Delivered by an international team of distinguished academics and experienced practitioners, the programme offers high-quality teaching in small, interactive group settings. Students can chose to specialise in different areas such as International Business Disputes or International Business Law and Sport or pursue a bespoke pathway in International Business Law by selecting courses tailored to their individual interests and career goals. A range of courses offered in the UK further enriches the learning experience.

The curriculum comprises 60 ECTS credits, with most courses scheduled in intensive blocks over two to three days or one week.
