

Instructions for Contributors

The ICLQ welcomes the submission of contributions for consideration by the editors with a view to publication. All manuscripts must be submitted online via:

<http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/iclq>.

The Board of Editors will only consider material which complies with the following:

- 1) The submission should be an original, unpublished, work not currently under consideration for publication elsewhere. Please note that our exclusive submission policy means you cannot submit your work to another journal until you have received a decision from us. If you would like to submit to another journal, you must withdraw your article from consideration by the ICLQ. Please visit <http://www.cambridge.org/core/services/open-access-policies> for information on our open access policies, compliance with major funding bodies, and guidelines on depositing your manuscript in an institutional repository.
- 2) The ICLQ publishes articles that deal with public international law, private international law, human rights law, comparative law and European Union Law. It particularly encourages the submission of innovative and original articles whose theme or content illuminate several of these subject areas. Articles which do no more than rehearse familiar and well-known material, or which are concerned only with national law (other than private international law) in a non-comparative way, should not be submitted.
- 3) Long articles should not exceed 12,000 words, excluding footnotes. Pieces of up to 6,000 words (including footnotes) will usually be considered for the 'Shorter Articles, Comments and Notes' section, which may secure earlier publication. The editors will decide on the section to which all contributions, irrespective of length, are best suited should they be accepted for publication. ScholarOne will require you to enter the word count (including footnotes) when submitting your article, and to indicate if you intend it for the 'Shorter Articles, Comments and Notes' section.
- 4) Footnotes should be numbered consecutively through the article and be in the form normally used by the ICLQ (see Style Guide below). Footnoting should not be excessive.
- 5) A short (50-100 words) abstract of the article should be supplied. We reserve the right to edit abstracts for length and style. Please also supply a minimum of five keywords (and a maximum of ten) for your article to enable digital searching.
- 6) Please ensure you have read and complied with the ICLQ Style Guide below before submitting your manuscript.

Authors, particularly those whose first language is not English, may wish to have their English-language manuscripts checked by a native speaker before submission. This is optional, but may help to ensure that the academic content of the paper is fully understood by the editor and any reviewers. We list a number of third-party services specialising in language editing and/or translation, and suggest that authors contact as appropriate:

<http://www.cambridge.org/academic/author-services>

Please note that the use of any of these services is voluntary, and at the author's own expense. Use of these services does not guarantee that the manuscript will be accepted for publication, nor does it restrict the author to submitting to a Cambridge published journal.

7) The ICLQ only accepts submissions online via the ScholarOne platform. To upload your manuscript please go to: <http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/iclq>. Detailed instructions for submitting your manuscript online can be found at the submission website by clicking on the 'Instructions and Forms' link in the top right of the screen; and then clicking on the 'Author Submission Instructions' icon on the following page. The Editor will acknowledge receipt of the manuscript, with a reference number, which should be quoted in all correspondence.

8) Authors should state their present academic or professional affiliation and indicate any professional or personal involvement in the subject matter of the article in the box provided. Please ensure the word document of your article is anonymous for peer review purposes before you upload it. Please do not upload a separate title page or CV.

9) Authors of articles in International & Comparative Law Quarterly have the option to publish on a Gold Open Access basis. This model of publishing makes the article freely available for anyone to read and reproduce immediately upon publication, under Creative Commons licensing. Under this model the costs associated with the publication process, from peer review through to copy-editing and typesetting, are covered by an article processing charge which is met by the author, the author's funding body or institution.

Authors will be given this option at the point at which the article is accepted.

All authors published in International & Comparative Law Quarterly also retain the right to archive the accepted (peer reviewed, prior to production) version of their article in institutional and non-commercial subject repositories. This activity is known as Green Open Access, allowing authors to meet the requirements of their funders. The journal's Green Open Access policies are included in the transfer of copyright form that an author receives on acceptance and are also detailed here: www.cambridge.org/core/services/open-access-policies/open-access-journals/green-open-access-policy-for-journals
