

British Institute of International and Comparative Law

Events

The Role of Legal Advisers in International Law?

Thurs 26 Feb 2015
09:00-19:30

Followed by a reception

Foreign and
Commonwealth Office,
Entente Cordiale Room,
King Charles Street,
London SW1A 2AH

CPD hours have been applied for.

The British Institute of International and Comparative Law and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office will co-host this conference on 'The Role of Legal Advisers in International Law'.

The conference will bring together current and former legal advisers, from various countries and a variety of legal and political systems, to discuss a number of issues critical to the role of the Government Legal Adviser, including: the functions of the legal adviser, the organisation and context for legal adviser's work, communication and contact between legal advisers from various countries and the role of public outreach.

The conference will also include a roundtable on the space occupied by the legal adviser between law and politics.

This conference is part of a broader project being implemented by BIICL and which is looking at British Influences on International Law between 1915 and today. Find out more about the project at www.biicl.org/influences

Registration

This event is free to attend, however advance registration is required. Please note that places are limited, so please register early.

Find out more and book online at www.biicl.org/legaladvisers

Event Cancellation Policy

Before registering please view our Event Cancellation Policy at www.biicl.org/cancellationpolicy

FOLLOW US

