Council refuses food report order

Bridgend County Borough Council is refusing to release a food hygiene report into a local hotel even though it has been ordered to do so.

Bridgend council has 28 days to appeal against the order

The Information Commissioner - the watchdog for the Freedom of Information Act - ordered the council to release an inspection of the Heronston Hotel.

But the council did not agree with the finding, claiming it raised concerns about its duty to protect the public.

FREEDOM OF INFORMATION ACT 2000 (SECTION 50)

DECISION NOTICE

Dated 9 December 2005

Name of Public Authority: Bridgend County Borough Council
Address of Public Authority: Civic Offices
Angel Street
Bridgend
CF31 4WB

Nature of Complaint

The Information Commissioner ("the Commissioner") has received a complaint from an individual ("the complainant") which states that on 27 January 2005 the following information was requested from Bridgend County Borough Council ("the Council") under section 1 of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 ("the Act"):

"A copy of the last hygiene inspection report of the Heronston Hotel"

The Council's Response

The Council has argued that the release of inspection reports would undermine the way it carries out food hygiene inspections. It promotes an informal approach to the inspection of premises, where advice and practical assistance is given to businesses.

The Council is concerned that, if information was publicly available, businesses would no longer be willing to have open discussions with inspectors. The Council would then be forced to adopt a formal inspection regime without the ability to protect the public by what it believes to be more effective means. This, it argues, would be prejudicial to the purpose at section 31(2)(c) of the Act.

The Commissioner's Decision

The Commissioner therefore does not believe that there is a significant risk of prejudice to the specific purpose set out in section 31(2)(c) of the Act (that of ascertaining whether circumstances which would justify regulatory action exist).

The Commissioner has looked at the public interest arguments in this case and has noted that there is an overwhelming public interest in the disclosure of this category of information.
